P 213

POWER SPECIALTY CO.,
111 Broadway,
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Norton Company,
Worcester,
Mass.

The PSC(o) of perfin pattern P213 neatly matches the users name on this cover. No identification is provided in the Catalog of United States Perfins. This illustration shows Power Specialty Company of 111 Broadway, New York used the perfin in a November 23, 1917 mailing to the Norton Company.

February 7, 1994 The Catalog of United States Perfins lists the Sligo Iron Works as the user of perfin pattern S151. This cover's corner card lists Sligo Iron Store Company of 1301 North Sixth Street, Saint Louis, MO on April 25, 1938. I suggest that since the initials match the perfin exactly the iron works entry should be relegated to the supplementary data section of the catalog.

Jim Estes (#2649) sent the above cover to me along with the following note:

While working on my stamp collection, I came across the illustrated cover from Curacao. The cover has everything. Exotic cover, censored, map stamp and perfin. What more could anyone want? Could you help me identify the perfin? Also, if you have any idea of its value, I would be interested in knowing it.

A cover from my collection. While I can not make out the postmark on Jim's censored cover, mine is clearly
